KeyMacro is a program that allows you to run external scripts in your browser. It uses the control functions of the browser (such as tab, Back, Forward, reload, etc.) to run a macro that can trigger any script you specify. An example would be if you were running a script on an external web site that is not supported by your browser, you can run the script using KeyMacro by simply opening the URL in your browser, and running the macro in KeyMacro. You can also trigger scripts to run at specific points in time (every hour, every 15 minutes, etc.) or if the user returns to a page they were previously on. What's New: 1) Now you can resize and re-arrange the window, showing only the area that you need. 2) Added download and edit buttons for macros (for
